A Petition for Fairness for the People Who Live, Attend School, Attend Church and Recreate Near Charlton Park & the Former Glenbrook Golf Course

On behalf of the children and families who live, attend school, attend church, and recreate near Charlton Park and the former Glenbrook Golf Course, I respectfully request Mayor Sylvester Turner and Houston City Council to

- Halt the plan to take part of Charlton Park away from residents to construct a new entrance and roadway from Park Place Blvd. to benefit the private non-profit Houston Botanic Garden, adding additional traffic to a busy neighborhood hub and increasing the risk to students at Park Place Elementary School and St. Christopher's Catholic School, the parishioners at St. Christopher's Catholic Church, and children and families who use Charlton Park.
- Halt the commitment to provide at least $1 million dollars to construct bridge and roadway improvements from City of Houston's Capital Improvement Plan budget specifically to benefit the private non-profit Houston Botanic Garden and instead use that $1 million dollars to improve and maintain free public parkland in the area.
- Halt the plan to lease 120 acres of previously multi-purpose public parkland, formerly known as Glenbrook Golf Course, which is worth $50 million dollars, to the private non-profit Houston Botanic Garden for a 30-year period for the total sum of one hundred dollars ($100.00), which plans to fence off the entire property and charge admission, ending free passage across Sims Bayou that has existed for over 75 years.
